The District looked at various models as a guide when considering technology improvements, such as the Escondido Elementary School District where students were provided with iPods and a district in Mooresville, North Carolina where, in 2009, students were issued individual laptops. In both cases, an increase in fluency rates were noted.

Technology Horizon:
Charting Our Future

There was discussion regarding technology improving student engagement and creating a personal learning environment unique to the needs of the students, as well as the importance of a technology program being connected to and supporting the goals and instructional strategies of the District. Critical to success are teacher readiness, professional development, and technical support. It was noted that a large component of the plan would be staff development.

Budget proposals for 2013-14:

Student devices:	$260,000, including $10,000 for iPad apps
Teacher laptops:	$ 88,000
Prof. development:	$212,500
Infrastructure:	$371,500

The Superintendent stated that an investment in technology next year will be part of what will yield our competitive advantage over other education providers in our community. Through this plan, the District is investing in technology infrastructure to create a robust and reliable network for children and their future. Cara Serban-Lawler, Director, Technology and Learning Resources, presented a summary of the technology plan and responded to clarifying questions.

The meeting was adjourned at 6:03 p.m.
